

Reason Number 4

Reading challenges your imagination

As you read, you put yourself in the characters' shoes. Your brain goes beyond the words on the page, imagining details such as appearances, emotions, and surroundings.

William Styron wrote, "A great book should leave you with many experiences, and slightly exhausted at the end. You live several lives while reading."

